'Nina Stromboli' is the story of five 50-year-old showmen who are in love with a 22-year-old woman. Someone from the audience will win her instead.

The circus comes to town

The Grand Magic Circus isn't grand any more, doesn't use sleight of hand and has no elephant acts. What the company does do is "mix cabaret, revue, circus and traditional theater," according to its founder, the Argentine-born, French-based director Jerome Savary. "There is also a band on stage and a lot of the actors play instruments."

GMC, which was created in 1986 but has been somewhat dormant for the past several years, is back with a show called Nina Stromboli, featuring the 53-year-old Savary in the title role.

Subtitled The Middle Age Crisis, the production, which recently opened in Europe, is about five retired actors trying to hit the road one more time.

In a phone interview from Hamburg, Savary, sounding somewhat tired the day after the premiere, talked enthusiastically about his new show.

"I was tired of doing big shows. This is a small touring show with 12 musicians and actors and only one girl. Most of what I do is so big, I really missed the time we were traveling."

The plot is simple. "We five actors return to Paris from our farm and we fall in love with this young girl. There's a contest on stage between ourselves - the one who does the most amazing number will play the last scene with her."

Although Nina Stromboli is "a written play, we change it every night. Especially me. I'm unable to learn a text and so I improvise a lot."

Savary adds that the success of the story has a lot to do with the audience.

"We play a lot with the public. I'm always asking them things. For example, here is this number about death and I ask them to shout 'death' with me. We get various reactions because people react differently to death."

Also, each night a young man is picked from the audience and put in a bed with a striptease artist.

"This is the story of five 50-year-old variety showmen who are in love with this 22-year-old girl. We are all on our knees begging her to spend the night with us."

"We tell her we have between us 250 years of love, but that's too much for her. She wants just 25 years and so someone in the audience is picked and gets a surprise. And it's a new man each night."

AFTER THE 100-minute show (with no intermission), Savary and his fellow performers continue to play jazz outside the theater or even in the streets.

There are more than a few autobiographical aspects in the show, some very personal.

"I'm now 53 and I just married an 18-year-old girl," he says, referring to his third wife. "And so it's a show about getting older. It's almost like Don Giovanni. Here we are five Giovannis trying to seduce this little girl, but she knows exactly what she wants and it is none of us," says Savary, who is also a well-known opera director.

Nina Stromboli will not be his first appearance in this country. He was here in 1988, though, when he directed the musical Cabaret for Habimah. It was a huge flop.

"I think my work was not so bad but Miki Kam who played Sally - and she is a great actress - was not the right type. I'm also not sure this is the musical that should be done in Tel Aviv."

GRAND MAGIC Circus was created in order to challenge traditional theater.

"I called it magic circus because I didn't want it to be too serious like the theater. I wanted to attract a new public and we succeeded with that, we had a lot of fun and we have now a lot of fun with this show too."

Savary admits that "the first reason to do this show is to have fun again. I saw the Rolling Stones in concert last night. They are the same age as me and they look like they are having fun on stage. Believe me, it's the most important thing and the public is the first to notice."

Theater today is somewhat stale, according to Savary. "I think most theater people did not realize that things have changed and that young people don't go to see theater any more."

Youngsters go just to film and rock concerts and so the theater should have the revolution the cinema did 15 years ago with Spielberg.

"Cinema is working again thanks to young people aged 12 to 25 who make it succeed. The people who go to the theater are aged 40 to 75. In theater, people are still performing and directing plays in the same way they did 20 to 40 years ago."

The whole approach must be changed, he says.

"You must not make long and boring shows. Young people today do not read anymore, they don't understand books, they are only used to clips, cartoons and television. I'm not happy about this but it is a fact and we have to adapt."

"We must do faster shows, simpler works and more direct. And for this purpose Grand Magic Circus is the right style."

"Our representation is not only text. We tell the story using all the media, sound, color, music, mime and text. It's closer to what you can see on cartoons and television."

Savary admits that "it's difficult to do Shakespeare and Molière in this style. But they too had a lot of tempo and you have to direct them with tempo too. After all we are doing exactly what Shakespeare or Molière were doing. At that time the text was not the only thing and the show was a mixture of music, variety, clowning, music and text."

"Actually very few people do these plays as they were originally done. We are doing them much too seriously today and hurting only ourselves and the audience of the future."

Nina Stromboli will be performed at the Tel Aviv Performing Arts Center from August 11 to 18.

Frum Here to Eternity

Scenes from Channah Koppel's 'Chocolate Spread' (above), a kind of Orthodox version of 'Trading Places,' and 'Emille's Movie' by Anat Maskens.

The religious students of Jerusalem's Ma'aleh film school may not pick the most hip subject matter, but some of their works can be quite refreshing.

By Herb Kelton

There are two surefire signs that something is different about Jerusalem's Ma'aleh film school.

The first is that the concluding credits of one of the films produced by the school's students close with the words "with God's help."

The second is the subject matter of the documentaries and dramas that the third-year students produce for their final projects.

One is called Fragments of a Dream and is a dramatization of the evacuation of a settlement. Another is entitled Betrothed, about the problems besetting a middle-aged couple after the husband becomes religious and the wife does not.

And a third is called Trousers, a documentary about the conflict facing young religious women who are struggling with the temptation to wear pants.

"Religious women in pants, permitted or forbidden?" reads the synopsis of Trousers, which the school sent to various distributors, television stations and film festivals. "There are those who see religious women in pants as distancing themselves from religion, while others see it as a search for personal comfort that has nothing to do with going against Halacha. A variety of opinions of religious women, for and against pants in religious society."

"Thrilling fare," the cynic may say. "What's the sequel, 'Short Sleeves'?"

But there is something refreshing about this seven-minute short. Something fresh about a film, played against Cat Stevens' lyrics "Ooh baby, baby, it's a wild world," that deals with an issue which - though it may not be on a par with the most hip subjects coming out of run-of-the-mill film schools - seems real.

The production of the film is somewhat choppy; the camerawork less than dazzling. But the dialogue is sincere, and the short presents an issue which, although trivial to many, is very real to a substantial segment of the population.

"AN INDIVIDUAL creates out of his internal world," says Ya'acov Recanati, director of the six-year-old Ma'aleh School of Communications, Television and Cinema, explaining the need for what is essentially a religious film school. "He cannot flourish if the surroundings are not supportive. He has to feel that what he wants to say is legitimate."

Recanati doubts whether religious students would feel free and comfortable producing films on religious subjects in a typical film school.

It's a fact, he says, that before the existence of Ma'aleh, located in Jerusalem's Musara neighborhood, only a few religious students enrolled in any of the film schools around the country.

But since the school's opening, it has consistently received many more applications than it can accept. Some 40 applicants applied for the 13 places in next year's entering class.

Recanati says that students at the school, who must produce a drama and a documentary at the end of their last year, are not told what subjects to deal with, or instructed to deal with Jewish themes.

"It just usually happens this way," he maintains, "because that is the cultural baggage they carry."

One of the purposes of the school, Recanati admits, is to get more religious students trained so they can fill media positions in the country.

A former employee of Israel Television, Recanati says that it is often difficult for religious producers and directors to find work, and that once they do there are often barriers - such as the frequent need to work on Shabbat, and working with a team that is coming from a completely different philosophical point of view - which make it difficult for them to succeed.

Ma'aleh, he hopes, gives them the skills needed to compete.

The school has received letters of support from former chief rabbi Avraham Shapira and Chief Rabbi Yisrael Meir Lau, and Recanati denies there is any basic conflict between film and television and religion. "Television is a vessel. There is an objection to what is placed in the vessel, but - with the right people - this can be changed."

Recanati says that although in theory the school's administration has the right to censor a project for a film, it has never happened.

He adds that in one of the previous two graduating classes a student produced a film on attitudes among religious youth to premarital sex, and this year a script was presented on abortion. "This one has not been approved," he said, "because the script is simply not good enough."

AMONG THOSE in this year's graduating class is Channah Koppel, a 30-year-old mother of three who immigrated here from Canada in 1986.

She says she could not picture herself in a nonreligious film school. "Socially it is more hospitable here," she says. "The Talpiot [film] school attracts a specific segment of the population. I would feel like an outsider there."

At Ma'aleh, Koppel adds, she can produce films that come from her world, without worrying that they will elicit jeers or snickers from her peers. "I don't feel I have to explain myself."

The short drama she produced was called Chocolate Spread, a Trading Places-type of movie where an under-appreciated modern-Orthodox woman, the mother of seven, decides after havdala one Saturday night to leave her family and take a walk on the wild side.

She casts aside her hair covering and ends up as a clerk at a pet shop, where a friendship develops between her and the store's anti-religious proprietor. Meanwhile, her place at home is taken by a secular girl escaping from a drug gang.

The film, which was screened on Channel 2, is "definitely not an autobiographical work," Koppel emphasizes. But Ma'aleh, she says, enables her to make films "from my world."

One of Koppel's classmates, Anat Maskens, used a major part of her world - her parents - as the subject of her documentary, Betrothed.

The film tells the story of her parents - her father who became religious and her mother who did not. It doesn't attempt to gloss over the hardships with a simplistic "love conquers all" message. Rather, it shows two people - who have shared a life together - struggling to make a very difficult situation work.

"What do you do together?" Maskens asks her mother in the film.

"Not much," the mother replies. "He expects things from me that I can't give him. He hopes that I will see the light." Later the mother says, "If it is good for him, it should be good for me. But it is difficult."

This film recently won Maskens a NIS 15,000 award from the Jerusalem Municipality for the best Ma'aleh film. Maskens, 38, and the mother of two, worked in the theater both in her native Belgium and in Beersheba before she stumbled on Ma'aleh.

"I thought my artistic life would be cut short," she says. "I found little tolerance here for a religious performer or artist."

*****AMATEUR - A stylized parody of the self-discovery quest, Hal Hartley's film takes shape with the out-of-body frisson of one of the pornographic stories written by Isabelle (Isabelle Huppert), a freckle-faced ex-nun who claims to be both a nymphomaniac and a virgin. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

***BLUE SKY - There's an inevitable quality to Jessica Lange's great performance as a frustrated army wife in the late Tony Richardson's final film. Part Blanche Dubois, part Marilyn Monroe, Lange's Carley is always on the edge of some hot emotion. While her frequent outbursts and the flirtatious apologies that invariably follow dilute the film's manly sheen, it's really her husband's (Tommy Lee Jones) silent suffering over time that gives the picture weight. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

***BOYS ON THE SIDE - Three pretty women (Whoopi Goldberg, Mary-Louise Parker, and Drew Barrymore) drive across the country. Along the way they laugh, hug, cry, reveal their deepest hopes and fears and paint each other's toenails. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly suggested.)

***1/2 THE BROWNING VERSION - Albert Finney and Greta Scacchi as the Crocker-Harrises, whose conjugal sorrow is meant to follow loosely the outline of Aschylus's The Agamemnon. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

***BURNT BY THE SUN - It's the summer of 1936 and Red Army Colonel Serguei Kotov is spending his day off at the dacha. As the film's darker historical themes begin to emerge, we realize that he's surrounded on all sides by legends. (Russian dialogue, Hebrew and English subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

ma's primary setting is the interior of an American nuclear submarine, where the crusty captain (Gene Hackman) and his thoughtful young second-in-command (Denzel Washington) vie for control of the crew and the deadly warheads. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly advised.)

***CONGO - Ordeal for ordeal, the latest Michael Cimino bestseller reaches the screen as probably not much siller than a dozen other adventure pictures cranked out in as many summers. But that's not saying much. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly suggested.)

***DIE HARD WITH A VENGEANCE - Balding wise guy Bruce Willis is upstaged once and for all in his third turn as scrappy police detective John McClane. And it's not costars Jeremy Irons or Samuel L. Jackson who grab attention from Willis. No, the real focus of John McClane's movie is without a doubt New York City, which quickly announces itself to be much more than the picture's backdrop. From the first shot, of a powerful bomb blast at Brooklyn Tower, the city gives the film its plot, its nervous momentum and, for at least the first hour or so, its surprisingly mordant wit. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

***DUMB AND DUMBER - Though it's hard to make claims for the subtlety of a film whose jokes center around such stuff as extra-strength laxatives and dead parakeets, the creators of this Jim Carrey vehicle at least grasp the concept of irony. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

***1/2 ED WOOD - Tim Burton's black-and-white biopic of the man considered by many to be the worst film director of all time. Ed Wood poses interesting questions - about art, devotion, quality, transsexuality and love - but its often meddlesome in its refusal to attempt serious answers. With Johnny Depp hamming absurdly as Wood and Martin Landau as a poignantly doped-up Bella Lugosi. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

*****INTO THE WEST - Mike Newell's film isn't original, but it is lovely - a muted child's fantasy about two poor Dublin kids who forge a magical bond with a wild white horse and set off on a bareback for the Irish coast, a place beyond time and adult supervision. With Gabriel Byrne and Ellen Barkin. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. General audiences.)

*****LIFETIMES - If David O. Seznick were alive and Chinese, he might make a film like this one. Director Zhang (Raise the Red Lantern) Yimou's most ambitious movie to date traces the lives of a simple family as they're rammed from one historical event to the next. (Mandarin dialogue, English and Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

***THE MADNESS OF KING GEORGE - Director, Nicholas Hytner, writer Alan Bennett and star Nigel Hawthorne are reunited for the clever film adaptation of their clever National Theatre play. The Madness of George III. Situated somewhere between Shakespeare's histories and the muckraking News of the World, the movie bounces along at a purposeful clip, all the time insisting on the shocking nature of its ironic title. On the whole, the team has done a more-than-respectable job of unpacking the play for the screen, though not everyone may share their conviction that the diminishment of the king's mental faculties is really so earth-shattering. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

***MURDER IN THE FIRST - After three years in solitary confinement, an Alcatraz prisoner (Kevin Bacon) eludes a fellow inmate to death. He seems a shoe-in for the gas chamber until a cocky young lawyer (Christian Slater) decides to put the prison itself on trial for torture. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

***MURIEL'S WEDDING - Good will is what's missing from Australian director P.J. Hogan's writing/directing debut. A broad comedy about an ugly duckling who transforms herself into a swan by fantasizing about other people's wedding dresses and listening, compulsively, to ABBA songs, the film is meant to be charming. It may indeed tickle viewers whose tastes run toward the garish; it struck this reviewer as both crude and cruel. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly suggested.)

***POCAHONTAS - Ostensibly based on a true story, Walt Disney's latest animated musical is set at the beginning of the 17th century. It tells the tale of a pretty young Native American woman who falls in love with John Smith, an English settler to rowdy kids and a dog - also have their share of real problems. At the start of the movie, the oldest daughter announces that she's pregnant (she's also 20 years old and single). (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

***STARGATE - Ronald Emmerich's Variation on a Theme by George Lucas is so slack, so drag, so utterly devoid of meaning and inspiration, that active attempts to block the film's unique particulars are unnecessary. There are few unique particulars to remember, save the mechanical ones, which don't really stick with you. They just blip and boom through your consciousness then loudly whiz away. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

***UNDER THE DOMIN TREE - Eli Cohen's movie glows. Literally, the sequel to Olla Almagor's first autobiographical film. Aviya's Summer, is steeped in light so warm, so golden, so softly pastoral that on several occasions one half expects the cast of young actors to pull red pipes from out of their pockets and play. But the picture without a doubt the strongest local creation of the last few years and the deserving co-winner of this year's Volgin Award at the Jerusalem Film Festival - is much more complex than its sunny palette might indicate. Set in a Youth Aliya village in 1953, the film focuses on a group of adolescent Holocaust survivors and orphans from troubled families, whom circumstance has forced to live side-by-side and apart, in a state of permanent inner and outer dislocation. (Hebrew dialogue, no subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

***WHILE YOU WERE SLEEPING - In Jon Turteltaub's emphatically upbeat film, Sandra Bullock stars as a lonely transit worker who saves her crush (Peter Gallagher) from an oncoming train and then, while he's in a coma, falls in love with his brother (Bill Pullman). (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

Jamestown, Virginia. As the two get to know each other better, they attempt to mediate between their different cultural backgrounds and, ultimately, between their warring people. Good intentions aside, the film is saccharine and annoying. (The movie exists in two versions: one with English dialogue and Hebrew subtitles; one with Hebrew dialogue. General audiences.)

***THE SNAPPER - Stephen Frears's The Snapper is that rare thing, a genuinely sweet film about people with real teeth and real skin. The Curley family - dad, mom, six

POSTER

All shows are in Hebrew except those marked with a star. Times are p.m. unless otherwise stated.

JERUSALEM

A SIMPLETON TO DINNER - A comedy written by Francis Webber. Smartly dressed against a posh Parisian interior, six sophisticated players excel in this light French boulevardier piece in some exorcisingly funny sequences. (Jerusalem Theater, Wed., 8:30)
THE WEDDING - Written by Barotl Brecht. With Aliza Rosen and Motti Katz. A ravishing revival of one of Brecht's brightest pieces shows Israeli theater at its lowest ebb. (Khan, Sat., 9:30; Sun., 8:30)

TEL AVIV AREA

AUTOBTRADA - Written by Ben Avner Hecht, directed by Dor Pless. The story of two Israeli couples in search of happiness, success and wealth. (Old Jaffa, Hasmita, tonight, 10)

CHILD'S PLAY - Two newcomers to Tel Aviv are left under what the big city has to offer until they meet up with Mr. Success. Directed by Eyalim Seldoff. Tender and charming. (Old Jaffa, Hasmita, tonight, 10:30; Wed., 9)

'Intelligence Didn't Come From Here' is one of the productions by the Nissan Nativ Acting Studio presented at Tzavta in Tel Aviv throughout the week.

CYPRUS - Israeli play written by Yonatan Gefen about a couple going through a divorce. (ZOA House, Sat., 9)

THEATER

DAVID'S CLASS - Nissan Nativ Acting Studio production. (Tzavta, Tues. and Wed., 8:30)
EYE AND EYELESS - Written by Megill Regav, directed by Jamie Shierman Marko. Portrays an unusual meeting between a youth and three blind people who live in a sheltered world. (Old Jaffa, Hasmita, Tues., 9 & 8:12:12)
FREE-STYLE MURDER - Three actors tell the same story in different styles. (T.A. Museum, tonight, 10:30)
A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM - Comedy directed by Micki Gurevitch. In this hilarious musical mostly manned by youngsters it is oldsters like Avi Kushnir and Itzhak Hazkai that steal the show. (Cameri, Sat., 9 & 8:28:35)
HAMETZ - Written by Shmuel Hasfari. A bleak look at what Israel has become. A powerful play, superbly directed and acted by an all-star cast, spells promise of a renaissance of great Hebrew theater. One of the most outstanding dramas to have hit our stage in years. (Eretz Yisrael Museum, tonight, 9:30; Sat., 9; Sun. and Mon., 8:30 & 8:42:05)

INTELLIGENCE DIDN'T COME FROM HERE - A musical produced by the Nissan Nativ Acting Studio. Daniela Michaeli, director. (Tzavta, today, 2; Sat., 9)
THE LOWER DEPTHS - Gasher Theater production. An audacious and stimulating version of Gorky's classic. (Jaffa, Gasher Theater, Wed. and Thurs., 8:30 & 5:18:21)
MATCHMAKING - Nissan Nativ Acting Studio production. (Tzavta, Thurs., 8:30)
THE MISER - Play by Moliere, translated by Ehud Manor. (ZOA House, Sun.-Thurs., 8:30)
P.S. YOUR CAT IS DEAD - A joint Yuval Theater and Habimah production. A comedy about an unemployed actor who is down on his luck. (Habimah, Sun. and Mon., 8:30)
POLLARD - THE PATRIOTS - Story by Motti Lerner about Jonathan Pollard. Starring Shuly Rand. Possibly compelling as political propaganda. Flashy, fastmoving scenario works as animated documentary though fragmented as drama. Some good acting but pretentious and quibbolic mosaic of historic heroics falls short of any promise of a great play. (Cameri, Sun. and Mon., 8:30)
THE ROSE TATTOO - Written by Tennessee Williams. Starring Roshia Kambos and Yigal Sade. (Habimah, Sat., 9)

SHIRA LEVIN IS DEAD AND LIVING IN TEL AVIV - Monodrama. (ZOA House, tonight, 10)

* TONIGHT: LOLA BLAU - Musical written by G. Kresler about the Jewish singer/actress who escaped from the Nazis. Directed by Geza Partos. In English. Studio Thy 81 production. (Bikurei Ha'lim, 6 Haftman, Tues., 8:30 & 6:19:51)
TOUCH WOOD - Story of a soldier and his friend during the Yom Kippur War. Lively declaiming of a tenuous text that intermittently grips with the sense of the soldier in action. (ZOA House, tonight, 10)
TRIO IN E FLAT - Eric Rohmer's drama on the age-old theme of youth and romance. (Old Jaffa, Hasmita, Sat., 9:30)
THE VISIT - Joint Cameri-Habimah production of the 20th-century play by Durrenmat about a millionaire who returns to her hometown seeking revenge on the lover who killed her. Neither compelling as sardonic social commentary nor half-raising as Grand Guignol. Thanks to the over-extended performance of the Old Lady, falls somewhat feebly somewhere in between. (Habimah, Sat., 9)
* YENTL - A monodrama in English. Studio Thy 81 adaptation of Isaac Bashevis Singer's short story, directed by Geza Partosh. (Bikurei Ha'lim, 6 Haftman, today, 2:30 & 6:57:56)

HAIFA

FILUMENA - Comedy by Eduardo di Filippo, directed by Itzik Weingarten. Beit Liessin production. A low-key take-off on Italian temperament and humor, enlivened by a few flashes of authentic brio. (Theater North, Sun. and Mon., 8:30)

Monday canceled for lack of humor

Penny Starr

Dame Edna Everage, the Queen of Australia, and patron saint of gladioli, popped into our homes to cheer us up this week.

We needed it. There have been few reasons to smile this month. Never mind canceling the Arad Festival; they should have just canceled the whole of July.

And TV, which usually allows us an escape from our dull daily routines into the tangled daily routines of fantasy characters, wouldn't let us off so lightly this week.

Sunday night's Channel 2 news at 8 p.m. showed Yitzhak Sofer, a resident of the Hebron area, guiding a group of American tourists around the city. He explained that the stench in the air came from open sewers "because culturally, Arabs don't use toilets." He said that if you were to go into a house worth $5 million in the middle of Ramallah you'd see that they defecate on the floor.

Sofer said he wasn't saying it out of prejudice.

And I'm not saying this out of prejudice, but shouldn't unbalanced loonies like him be banned from speaking to tourists, TV crews, neighbors, anyone?

I have no idea why he agreed to look foolish on television, or how Channel 2's cameras persuaded him to be filmed, but I was ashamed to hear him. I hope those American tourists weren't glib enough to believe him.

That was Sunday's bad news. Then came Monday.

You all spotted it, didn't you? The listings for Monday night were wrong! Several of you phoned to ask angrily why your favorite comedies weren't on.

Israel didn't feel much like laughing Monday. The Ramat Gan bus bomb depressed everyone. Even President Ezer Weizman, everyone's favorite batty old uncle, abstained from frivolously blaming Burger King.

Of course, the TV stations weren't going to run the Monday funnies; folks, it wasn't the cable and TV companies getting the lineups wrong again. It was a tactful, appropriate and quick-thinking move on the part of the TV stations and cable companies to postpone the sitcoms. In particular I admire Tel-Ad for taking off The Comedy Store and Ramat Aviv Gimmel in spite of possibly losing advertising revenue.

Of all the fine news coverage of the bus attack, the Only-In-Israel Award goes to the Channel 2 TV crew in Ichilov Hospital. On her way to visit her son, the mother of one of the injured was panicking and hysterical in the elevator. Where other news crews would have just filmed her and kept out of the story, Channel 2 tried to calm her down, asked who her son was and told her they had seen him and that he was fine.

No, it's not objective reporting, it's intrusive and anyway, what does a film crew know? But it was one of those moments when you remember the reason you're still living in this pushy, troubled country.

IF YOU take a quick TV tour outside Israel, you'll see we're not missing out on anything. In Celeste, the Spanish telenovela (soap opera), they think that if they shove a straight, brown-haired wig on the curly blonde head of the actress viewers won't know it's the same woman! And since the brunette is obviously the Bitch (you don't need to speak Spanish or be able to read the subtitles, just listen to the see-a-a-y music and look at the terrified expressions of the people around her), perhaps they think we'll believe she's Joan Collins.

Dumber than the Spanish programmers are the shoplifters in Birmingham, England. In the Discovery Channel's Shops and Robbers (Monday, 10 p.m.), one 17-year-old persistent offender told a cop that crime pays.

"And you're sitting here in a cell," the cop said. "Would you say that crime has paid in your case?"

"Well," said the kid defiantly, "Not yet."

Stupid boy. But then the woman in charge of security at Marks and Spencers' stores in the region said something almost as stupid.

She was training staffers how to spot a shoplifter, and the basic rule is: judge by appearance. She was watching a closed-circuit video of an average-looking couple with a toddler when she said snootily: "They don't look like the sort of people who can afford our blouses." So be warned, next time you go shopping in Hamashbir, don't forget to put on your best clothes.

Marks and Spencers' most-wanted shoplifter, a woman who has been getting refunds on stolen M&S goodies for eight years, is a nicely spoken, nicely dressed woman in her forties. She claims she steals between £2,000 and £3,000 (approximately NIS 9,400 to NIS 14,100) on a good day.

The people who came out looking best were the anti-shoplifting squad. They were sensible and firm and the only thing thick about them was the accent: "What are the computer games like?"

THE AVERAGE American is really thick. At least that's the conclusion you can draw from Jay Leno's man-on-the-street pop quiz on Saturday night.

The host of the Tonight Show (Saturday, 1 a.m.) was checking to see if we watched too much TV and if we learned anything from it.

What's the speed of light? No one knew. What did Alfred Nobel invent? Most people thought it was the Nobel Peace Prize.

What's the length of the cruise on Gilligan's Island? Children, adults, tourists, non-English speakers, everyone got it - three hours.

IT WAS Australia's national symbol, Dame Edna (housewife, superstar) who brought TV-viewing into perspective. In Tuesday night's Dame Edna's Neighborhood Watch (Channel 2, 12:25 a.m.) she/he "randomly" picked three people out of the audience to answer a quiz about housing.

One of the contestants had been singled out to have her home shown throughout the world. We saw inside her secret drinks drawer, we looked inside her airing cupboard, we peeked under her pillows.

As Dame Edna said: "When we watch television we sit in a very ordinary environment looking at a wonderful world. But in fact here we are in a wonderful world looking at a very ordinary environment."
